GOOD KIDS, TOUGH CHOICES: ETHICAL PARENTING IN A MESSY AGE

Thursday, October 30 7:00 p.m.

Redeemer Lutheran Church
1545 Chain Bridge Road, McLean

For all parents in our community...bring your parenting dilemmas!

As an added feature, parents will have the opportunity to return on Friday, October 31st and participate in a more in-depth focus group discussion at 10:30 a.m.-12:00 p.m. (middle school parents) and 12:30 p.m.– 2:00 p.m. (high school parents). These focus groups are designed to assist Dr. Kidder in the writing of his new book.

Dr. Rush Kidder's calling is to help people make better, more ethical decisions in every aspect of life. Through his lively, compelling, real-life stories, he illustrates the fact that our toughest choices are not matters of right versus wrong but of right versus right. Kidder's seminal 1995 book, How Good People Make Tough Choices, provides practical tools for tough decision-making. Dr. Kidder has worked for more than seventeen years to refine his guidelines for ethical decision-making through his Institute for Global Ethics, a non-profit, non-partisan think-tank headquartered in Rockland, Maine. He was an award-winning senior columnist and foreign correspondent for The Christian Science Monitor. A graduate of Amherst College with a Ph.D. from Columbia University, he continues to write weekly commentaries for Ethics Newsline®. He also places op-ed pieces in such periodicals as the Los Angeles Times, the Chicago Tribune, and The Boston Globe.
